Williamsburg Homes Continues Unprecedented Winning Tradition with 27th Year Honors from Home Builders Association

Columbia, MD – May 26, 2011 – Williamsburg Homes continues to set the standard in Maryland homebuilding by receiving First Place honors for the 27th consecutive year from the Home Builders Association of Maryland. The award recognizes homebuilders in the state who provide buyers with excellence in design, livability and value in town homes and single-family homes. This 27-year achievement by Williamsburg Homes is unmatched among Maryland builders.

Bruce Harvey, president of Williamsburg Homes is proud of the streak, but not surprised by it because he has assembled a team of professionals that “take great pride in designing, building, selling and servicing their homes. This achievement is a wonderful accomplishment but we really view it as a challenge to improve.”

Liberty Homes, a division of Williamsburg Homes, received the Maryland Award of Excellence for their Maya’s Manor model at Emerson. Williamsburg Homes received four Awards of Excellence. Models/plans cited for their excellence were the Issac model at The Enclave at Ellicott Station, the Dorchester II and Wellington models at Fairwood in Bowie, and the Rutledge at Sheppard Manor in Ellicott City.

“Awards are not given, they are earned,” said Tim Morris, vice president of sales and marketing. “While our entire company marvels at the unprecedented success, we are very proud of this yearly accomplishment. The market continues to change and challenge us and our team continues to meet that challenge each and every year,” continued Morris.

With the five awards received this year, Williamsburg Homes is again “Maryland’s Award Winning Builder.” “Our buyers really deserve a great deal of the credit for these awards,” said Bruce Harvey. “Our home designs have been fine-tuned over the years to feature the most current design trends, finishes and features. When a homeowner tells us what their dream home looks like, we can easily adapt our plans to build what they envision.”

Williamsburg Homes and its companion company, Liberty Homes is currently building in nine communities throughout Howard, Baltimore and Harford County Maryland.
